

THE TEN PRINCIPLES

of Reincarnation

Same Face, New Body

Many people look almost identical from one life to the next. Bone structure, smiles, even signature hand-gestures show up again.

Birth-Marks = Old Scars

Unexplained birthmarks or birth defects can line up with injuries or wounds from a person's previous life story.

Surprise Languages (Xenoglossy)

Some children suddenly speak a tongue they've never heard this time around—echoes of a language they once knew.

Built-In Talents & Child Prodigies

Musical genius at age five or instant skill with a paintbrush? Raw abilities often carry over intact.

Life Maps & Soul Groups

Souls tend to plan their next adventure in advance and come back with the same "cast"—family, friends, even rivals—though we swap roles.

Switching Culture—Religion, Nationality, Race

Between lives we can trade passports and faiths. Today's opponent could literally be you tomorrow.

Trying On a New Gender

The same soul may experience life as male, female, or somewhere in-between across different incarnations.

Carry-Over Phobias

An unreasoning fear of water, fire, or loud noises can trace back to the way someone died in a former life.

Geographic Memory & Déjà Vu

People sometimes know the layout of towns they've never visited in this life—because they once lived there.

Split Incarnation (Parallel Lives)

Rarely, a soul runs two bodies at once, creating overlapping lifetimes that later cross-reference.

"THESE PATTERNS SUGGEST THAT PERSONALITY, APPEARANCE, AND RELATIONSHIPS SURVIVE DEATH AND SURFACE AGAIN. IF TRUE, WE'RE ALL FAR MORE CONNECTED THAN WE THINK."
